

B

Birthday – create a birthday fundraiser on Facebook, no matter how small these are a great and simple way of raising vital funds.

E

Endorsement – use your network to your advantage, your friend of a friend might have a celebrity contact or business willing to endorse your fundraiser.

Y

Yummy – yes, we know bake sales are a classic but why not make it competitive and host your very own Bake-Off? Yum.

O

Online fundraising – set up a fundraising page and share your story. You could even create a video for an even bigger impact.

N

Night in – host a dinner party, board games evening, or film screening for a small fee. Create your own gourmet popcorn to sell to raise a little extra.

D

Do without – what can't you live without? Chocolate? Sports? Social Media? Why not get people to sponsor you to give up your biggest vice for a month.

A

A-thons – walk-athons, bowl-athons, yoga-thons, read-athons or dance-athons, you can raise money by asking for pledges per km walked or per book finished.

U

Unafraid – face your fears and take on a challenge either on your own or with a team. From abseiling to sky diving, the sky's the limit!

T

Tins – ask us for a collection tin and place it in your favourite store, community centre, or your place of work. These can be really effective in the right place.

I

Intelligence – pair up with a local bar or restaurant and organise a trivia night. Advertise well in advance and charge an admission fee for teams wanting to test their IQ

S

Second hand sale – if you're having a clear out you could consider donating a % of the sales. Sites like eBay allow you to do this very easily.

M

Makaton – a sponsored silence with a twist - try to communicate for a day by using signs, Makaton or PECs.
